"Butcher of Europe" Slowly Being Encircled By Allies

LATEST WAR BULLETINS

London, Nov. 9.—At three points, in Silesia, in East Prussia, and in Alsace, forces of the allies were on German soil today and, for the first time since the outbreak of hostilities, conditions seemed to presage the opinion of British military observers, a reversal of the roles of the contending armies.

CZAR PLANS INVASION OF TURKEY AND SUBJECTION OF AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

Up to the present time Germany has been fighting in the territory of her enemies, but now she would appear to be more or less seriously menaced from the east by the victorious armies of Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commanders-in-chief in the field, the advance guards of which are less than 200 miles from Berlin. It is true that there was a brief Russian invasion of East Prussia during the early stages of the war, while the French have for a long time held their position in Alsace; but the latest developments in the Russian advance, if the interpretation placed on it in London is not all wrong, is the most important of the campaign up to the present time.

The inhabitants are reported fleeing from their prosperous Silesian homes despite the fact that Gen. Von Hindenburg's strong army is between them and the advancing Russians. But something besides the might of the German arms may enable them to remain still and for some time in security. For a significant message from Petrograd announces that Russia may defer the invasion of Germany until her historic mission toward the Bosphorus is accomplished.

This mission includes the complete subjection of Austria-Hungary as well as the invasion of Turkey.

Cossack raids across the German border continue and Berlin now admits that the Russians are well beyond the River Warthe.

The official French announcement of today says: "On our left wing the Germans have undertaken again an offensive movement on Dixmude and in the region of Ypres. Particularly to the southeast of Ypres their attacks have been everywhere repulsed. At the end of the day, referring to the entire front between Dixmude and the Lys we have made progress along the major part of the line."

A PAIR OF SIXES

Snappy Farce Comedy Pleases Good Audience Last Night at The Washington Theater.

It was the universal opinion that the farce comedy play, "A Pair of Sixes," shown at the Washington Theater last evening was one of the best plays of its kind ever shown in this city.

The cast included twelve people and every one proved to be a star in his or her respective part.

The plot of the play centers around two partners in business, whose jealousy one for the other, would not admit of the other's superiority, and finally the two men play a card game to see who of the partners shall be the master for one year and who the servant. The complications that arise are mirth-provoking and the whole thing ends by a woman showing that her common sense is better than a "Pair of Sixes."

There was not a weak character in the whole play and every one went away with a feeling that there was nothing else to be desired—that the play was complete.

MISS KITTY BESS

Of course you don't know her, but we do. She is a beautiful blonde with natural rosy cheeks. Yes, we would call her a perfect Gibson Girl. She is the type of a lass that makes you turn around to take another look. She always looks like a moving fashion sheet. She knows style like a book. Listen to what "Kitty did" or does:

She is employed by our New York office as a shopping girl. Every day she must visit the big department stores in New York and see what they are selling. She will go to "Lord & Taylor's" and buy a pair of hose for 39c that they are advertising extensively. At "Altman's" she will pick up a new nifty collar. At "Wanamaker's" she may find a novelty purse. "Macey's" may tempt her with a new sweater coat. "Gimbel's" probably are selling silk petticoats. Well, when she returns to the office in the evening all her purchases are assembled together. All the buyers in our office are shown the new things. If they consider them good, they will locate the manufacturers of same, and they will send Merz Bros., as well as the rest of our syndicate, what they think they can use. That's why all the new things are found at the Big Store first.
